Two Cents for Charity

Many organizations and individuals gave generously to the three Durban families and their Christmas appeal. Their contributions will provide for the families through January, February, March, and April and have left enough impetus to the experiment to guarantee its continuance as a worthwhile campus tradition and an ultimate success.

Although the Fund succeeded because other people were helped, no one should overlook or underestimate the serious reflection which the total sum collected casts upon the average student, who contributes out of his pocketbook a little less than two cents. Nothing is to be gained by harping on the overwhelming evidence of a great unselfishness, but it is worth of mention.

It was the first year that the college community has ever turned its face toward the less fortunate during the Christmas season, and it was natural that the most inexpressible bewilderment should reveal a slight stiffness in the week. As times goes on it will probably learn to turn its head a little more freely.

Four Down, One To Go

1. Women's Student Government and classes, and the Y. W. C. A.
2. The Y. M. C. A.
3. The Pan-Hellenic Council
4. The Publications Council
5. The Men's Student Government and classes.

Four years ago the elections of officers and members to any and all of the organizations above were no credit to an educated community.

Gradually, in the outer sanctum, largely through the influence of student themselves and at the demand of those who said that "it can't be done" each action was freed from the flagrant domination of fraternities and seniority politics. Last Wednesday the Publications council was the fourth to adopt a merit system, and the efforts of fraternities to restrain themselves from controlling the student government elections is now in the process of what is hoped will be accomplishment.

The merit systems adopted in the four fields of student activity have been perfect in their aim to be sure. Observers of the working of the merit systems in other universities would be foolish to overlook almost irrefutable evidence of the influence of some sort of politics, whether in the "gang-up" form or otherwise. Nor do those who drew up or approved the plan passed Wednesday claim any perfection for it; it simply represents the best and most honest attempt now known by its authors. Kenneth Few, and the majority of the members of the council, to improve the quality of the publications and to give the publications which have heretofore suffered the elections of officers and members a beginning. The adoption of the four plans in the past four years indicates clearly the desire of student organizations to elect their personnel cleanly, decently, and democratically and their determination to translate this desire into concrete action.

Work has already been started in the fifth field. The combine system is not riding as firmly in the saddle of this horse as it was six months ago. If 1938 sees the unsating of political control in the fifth field, the Duke student body will have completed four years of splendid work.

Exams are Coming

Exams are coming. In fact, they're almost here. This simple statement of fact brings many complicated thoughts to mind.

Twice a year it is the accepted custom here for classes to meet on the day before final exams begin. It is quite possible for a student to have his most difficult exam on the first day with barely time to study for it. This is not as it should be. There ought to be a brief intermission.

There are numerous arguments which might be raised against such a plan. The student who has planned his assignments daily should have little trouble for the first exam, you say. Granted. What guarantees is there that a student would not have interim between classes and exams for profitable study? There is none. That too is granted.

But this also must be considered. Daily lectures are given as bits of a whole, not as the whole itself. There is a definite need for assimilating and integrating a course before it is possible to begin any intelligent study of it. True, there are many students who will not be able to assimilate a course in a month's time. But what of those who feel the need of a little time to do the job? Well, it is only fair that they be allowed an opportunity to do it.

And what of those who will not use such a rest period for profitable study? Suppose they do spend this time just relaxing? If that's the preparation they feel is necessary for the exam period, let them utilize it in this way.

As Others See It

He Created Villanova

When God made the World, He created spots that were so rich in beauty that men have come to look upon them as garden spots. He created the Grand Canyon. He created the Emerald fields and the Rockies. He created the Alps; He created the beautiful bay of Capri. He created the stream-lined hills of California; and, among these other beauty spots, He created Villanova.

We, here at Villanova, are a bit too close to Villanova and the surrounding terrain to appreciate the beauty of this spot.

Rolling country, farms, estates, hills, streams, trees, birds all center about Villanova and conspire to make it one of the most beautiful college campuses in the United States.

If you don't believe it, get out for a walk next Sunday. Instead of puttering around in your room in a fruitless hull session, get out and take the air.

He's comin'! ELLIS T. BAKER, III, will appear on our Community Sing Sunday—sponsored by Radisson Add Penfield. For variety from the Baker-Preston, the Swing Club-Sing session will hang out, Bill Courtney will play six solos, with George Adams singing the male parts.

The boys in Body and Soul have been wondering who the fate-down-towners sitting by the piano are. If you must know, they are the girls from the girls' dormitory, for an airing and a look at their Adonis while blowin' on the sax... Gay Birmingham, that lovely person, will be here to sing a solo in the final step... The Sigma Chi-Kappa Sigma tomorrow will be here for much fraternal gassy.

It's time, Courtesy Angels appear in this column. They'll finally prance up before the holidays just to please me.

The Ambassadors are suffering from the loss of two leading members who decided to go to the University of Michigan. It's the letter from Bill W. that's the secret. There's a girl who can take it... You too would laugh at the girls who can take it.
