BOXERS MEET STATE COLLEGE

THE DUKE CHRONICLE

RUSHING BEGINS MONDAY AT 2

PAN-HEL TO HELP SATISFY RUSHEES AS CONSULTATION BOARD IS FORMED

Council Agrees to Place Representative at Disposal of Freshmen During Quiet Period to Answer Questions

DATE CARDS SAME AS THOSE USED YEAR AGO

To Be Distributed at First Open House; Ignorance of Rules Not Tolerated

The Pan-Hellenic council met Wednesday night to determine the discussion of the rules to be used during this year's rushing period.

None of the rules which had been passed at earlier meetings were changed. Those rules, which had been set up at a series of meetings the council has held primarily to discuss rushing rules, were outlined at the Tuesday issue of the CHRONICLE.

At the meeting Wednesday the council voted to get up a board of consultation for freshmen during quiet period. Sunday afternoon, February 17, a representative from each fraternity will be in the house directly north of the reception hall of the Union building. The board of consultation will be in operation from 9:00 till 10:00.

Board Answers Questions

Any freshman may visit the fraternity representatives to ask questions which can be answered only by the representatives. It is hoped by this that a number of questions may occur to the freshmen after they have retired to the quiet of their rooms to ponder the merits of the different fraternities.

The establishment of the board of consultation does away with any necessity of a freshman's stopping a fraternity man on the campus or going to the fraternity quadrangles to call a fraternity man at his chapter house to answer questions.

Same Date Card

At the meeting Wednesday the council decided to use the same form of invitation which was used last year. The cards will be distributed equally among the fraternities, from whom the freshmen will receive them at the first open house they attend Monday afternoon.

The council has agreed that every representative is responsible for his fraternity's understanding the rules. Therefore, ignorance of the rules will be no excuse for any violation. One of the interpretations that council has take in the form of the invitation for the Monday afternoon open house is that actually 25 guests are invited men to appear at 11:30, instead of 2:00, at which time the open houses are to begin. In view of the fact that the fraternity agreed to notify its rushees that the open house is not to begin until the afternoon, the council took no disciplinary action.

Situation Different Here

Due to the unusually high scholastic requirements of the Duke fraternities, as established by the Pan-Hellenic council, rushing is a problem of more than ordinary magnitude on this campus. No freshman is eligible for rushing who has made an "F" in a course, or who has made less than a "C" average in his courses.

Last year, according to a report of the National Fraternity council, Duke fraternities had the highest scholastic average of any chapters in American universities or colleges. This fact reflects favorably on the fraternity situation here, both as to excellence in scholarship and to the control of fraternities as exemplified in the Pan-Hellenic council.

Eligible Advanced Frosh Rushing List Published

Addition Increases Number to 264; Transfer Eligibility Group Not Yet Completed; Three Men Removed From List

Dean Manchester's office today released the names of twenty-three advanced freshmen who are eligible for rushing for the first time. This increases the number of men eligible to be rushed to 264.

Six other changes were made in the eligibility list as published in the last issue of the CHRONICLE. Three names were added to the list, and three were taken off leaving the number of eligible freshmen at 241.

The names that have been added to the list are: Paul Bennett Boger, Morganton, N. C.; Jack Allison Lockwood, Verona, N. J.; and Richard Dooley, Rockville Center, N. Y. The following names were on the eligibility list but mistakenly: Robert Leighton Cox, D. Arthur Fair and James Endsley Graves.

Few Transfers Eligible

There are several transfer students who are now eligible to be rushed, but Dean Herring's office has not yet completed the list. This group of names should be released within the next few days.

The list of those advanced freshmen who have made the required units to be eligible for fraternity rushing follows:

Robert R. Anders, Charlotte, N. C.; Lynwood Baldwin, Durham, N. C.; Robert Bean, Louisville, Ky.; Jesse P. Brundage, Upland, Penna.; Walter Cosgrove, Southampton, N. Y.; Walter F. Fischer, Elizabeth, N. J.; Stuart Gillespie, Jr., Stanford, Conn.; Willard Merritt Gillies, Melrose, Mass.; George H. Hadelsberger, Yonkers, N. Y.; John Hennemier, Savannah, Ga.; Glenn Hewitt, Syracuse, N. Y.; Chester G. Jones, Bryn Mawr, Penna.; Mitchell Kellogg, New Canaan, Conn.

William Krisek, Schenectady, N. Y.; Eugene B. Low, White Plains, N. Y.; Frederick P. Moore, East Gardner, Mass.; Irving W. Nielsen, Westbrook, Maine; William Martin Prindle, West Orange, Harrington, R. I.; George Salmon, Maplewood, N. J.; Hayden E. Thomas, Munhall, Penna.; David H. B. Ulmer, Morristown, N. J.; Carolus A. Wade, Phoenixville, Penna.; Paul Whitener, Hickory, N. C.

Those already reported on a previous list as having eligibility are: Robert C. Archer, Charlotte, N. C.; Richard G. Hass, Youngstown, Ohio; Harry P. Hauseen, Scranton, Penna.; Alexander Harrington, R. I.; George Salmon, Maplewood, N. J.; Thurman Ward, Galax, Virginia; Richard Whitaker, Whiteville, N. C.

BOARD EXPLAINS SPACE EXPENSES OF CHANTICLEER

Council Discusses Question Raised by East Representative of Year-Book Costs

The Publication board had a banner meeting yesterday afternoon—everyone of the 15 members were present who is usually not the case of a record.

Discussion of general interest was limited to a request by Hazel Emory, one of the representatives elected at large by the student body, for information concerning the Chanticleer, university annual.

Miss Emory stated that the women were interested in the cost of the year book and in the possibilities of reducing these costs.

Martin Williams, editor, and Norman Livengood, business manager, explained that under the present contracts, photographers, photoengravers and engravers it was impossible to lower space rates. Within the past two years individual rates in the class sections have been reduced 25 per cent. Senior class rates were reduced this year from $8.50 to $7.00, and rates for other classes were proportionally reduced.

The Chanticleer officers said they would welcome the opportunity to present detailed information as to costs and that an audited report would be supplied to the East campus student government within the next two weeks.

Sentiment of board members is divided on the question of whether the publication is worth the money spent for it, but as the publication has naturally signed its contracts for this year, any general change is out of the question.

Much of the dissatisfaction over the Chanticleer set-up is a hang-over from the storm of protest aroused a few years ago over the editor and the business manager of the annual made huge profits.

JENSEN ADVISES BAN ON LYNCHING

Sociologist Urges Co-eds to Support Wagner-Costigan Bill in Full

PRACTICE A DISCREDIT

"We who love the South are not ashamed of lynching as southerners," said Dr. Howard Jensen, member of the sociology department, "but as Americans, we are." Dr. Jensen, who spoke in Tuesday chapel on the East campus, urged the women to support the Wagner-Costigan Anti-Lynching Bill, which would enable the Federal government to support the forces of law and order in any State in the Union in controlling the crime of lynching.

Some Justify It

"Some people still say lynching," asserted the speaker, "but there are many facts about it on which these people are not fully informed." Asserting that in Mexico, it is not a traditional matter in this country, since there are only six states that have never had a lynching. It is not only the South and the West who commit the crime.

Contrary to popular belief, neither is it exclusively a racial matter, Dr. Jensen said. Whites are almost lynched during the past fifty years were white, and in some states, many more whites than negroes have been lynched."

United States Condemned

Dr. Jensen impressed strongly on his audience that the barbarous practice of lynching must be abolished for patriotic reasons, if for none other. When these crimes are spread over the newspapers in foreign countries, the United States is condemned in editorials as a land of savagery and brutality. "There is nothing that discredits America so much abroad as this."

The speaker was introduced by Frances Lewis, '37, chairman of the inter-racial committee of the Y. W. C. A. which sponsored the program.

HOUSE CONSIDERS TREASURY PLANS

Morgenthau Proposes Payment of Public Debt With Bond Pension Reserves

ADVISES HIGHER TAX

Secretary Favors Increased Tax Than President Roosevelt Suggests in Security Bill

Washington, Feb. 8.—(U.P.)—A treasury proposal submitted to Congress provided today for payment of the public debt with money raised for old age pension reserves.

The proposal was contained in recommendations of secretary of the treasury, Henry Morgenthau, Jr., to the house ways and means committee for amendment of the economic security bill now before that committee.

The bill, passed by the senate, and through two to six per cent gradated pay roll and earning taxes would be used to buy up bonds representing the public debt, according to the plan of President Roosevelt.

Under the graduated tax plan proposed by the treasury the old age pension reserves would amount to $622,000,000 at the end of 1938 and $18,000,000 at the end of 1943.

The treasury suggested a higher tax than that proposed by the president in his security bill. The changes were made to have the security program meet of President Roosevelt and the cabinet committee on economic security.

The president's security bill as it left the senate provided that the old age pension reserves would reach only $7,675,000,000 by 1980 and $15,286,000,000 in 1980. The treasury estimate was calculated to raise over $30,093,000,000 by 1980.

Would Balance Budget

The proposal would, in effect, create a sinking fund which would in a

DEAN ADDRESSES UNDERGRAD MEN

Dr. W. H. Wannamaker Calls For More Determined Student Stand on Cheating

The first general assembly of the new semester, which took place yesterday morning provided a relief from the monotony of academic routine in the form of two interesting talks, the first by J. Foster Barnes, director of musical affairs at Duke university, the second by Dean Wannamaker.

Ballet Russe to Return

Mr. Barnes announced the coming of the Ballet Caleb Arkatov here Monday evening, March 4. The Ballet, he said, was to return to Durham only because of the highly appreciative audience which attended the performance last year, since the engagement proved to be a financial failure. The prices, however, have been set by the management of the Ballet Russe at a slightly higher in order to avoid a repetition of the situation of last year.

Mr. Barnes stated that it is to be the only presentation of the Ballet in either of the two Carolinas, students desiring to attend should purchase tickets early. He stated also that the purpose of the program presented each year is to bring genuinely fine attractions before the university community regardless of expense.

Support Lacking . . .

Dr. Wannamaker opened his short talk with the statement "I regret my unpleasantness"—exams. He conveyed the impression that the increased surveillance over examinations, as suggested by the student council, was not altogether successful. A sentiment favoring support of the previously decided penalties is not prevalent. The remedy for the situation lies with the student body, he said. It is evident that those who will cheat will be unwilling to do so without the recognisance of the faculty, therefore the students must develop a conscience that will turn away with disgust from the interference of the administration.

Excessive Drinking . . .

In relation to excessive drinking, he stated that in the event that there were further manifestations of it, more drastic measures would be taken. Towards the conclusion, he stated, "I cannot handle the problem, the only alternative is to return to the old system under which the police were permitted to enter rooms on the campus, and were instructed to make arrests of intoxicated persons on sight.

DUKE VICTORIOUS OVER V.P.I., 27-19

Riley Leads Blue Devil Quint to Second Win in as Many Nights

BUD HERRICK INJURED

Reserve Center Forced to Quit Game After Melee Under Basket; Wood Stars

Always spectacular and speedy, Joe Riley, clever forward, led Duke's Blue Devils in their second victory in as many nights when the Dukes defeated Virginia Tech's quintet by 27-19, in a game played on the Blacksburg court.

The victory, however, had its price, for the valuable services of another Duke court recruit were deprived the Blue Devils when Bud Herrick, center, was injured in a melee under the basket and forced to retire from the game. The accident to Herrick's injury is not yet known.

In the absence Bill Davis, another sophomore, Herrick has been playing past and bound in a very favorable account of himself. Nicholls, who was injected into the fray long enough to score a field goal and Captain Spencer Bell were the only regulars who saw action last night. The other members of the first quintet were held in reserve for the game against the brilliant victory over Carolina's high-powered Tar Heels.

Riley Star

Riley was equally assisted in the scoring department by Willard Wentz, dependable guard. Riley contributed eleven points to the Duke total of 27 points. The Devils' score was an early lead and rolled at half-time with a 14-7 count. Duke added eight points to the total during the first half of the final period and then Bucher's were made fast and furious as the Gobblers from Virginia Tech tried to stem the Duke but a two-point lead at 13-11.

Here Wentz netted two through the center of the court and added one more. Tech added frequent scoring chances in the first half and Duke's passing attack was edged at times.

The Blue Devils move on to Lexington, where they encounter a tough opponent in Washington and Lee. The Generals have defeated in their invasion of the Duke court, but with some added strength they may give the Duke boys comparatively greater trouble.

V. M. I. Tomorrow

Tomorrow night Duke's Devils have a second game in Lexington, this time with the Cadets of V. M. I. This game will be followed by contests with Washington and Lee, and the Generals of Virginia. The Duke men play their next home game on Tuesday evening when they are hosts to Davidson's Wildcats. The latter have a very considerable hearing on Big Five championship standings.

TRINITY ENROLLS TWENTY-SIX MEN

Academic Freshmen Expelled Lower Than Rumors Indicate; Records Incomplete

Statistics released from the office of Dean Herring yesterday afternoon show that twenty-six new men have been enrolled in the academic freshman school of Duke university for the session during the second semester.

Of this group of new men, eight are freshmen who have made new superclassmen attending Duke for the first time. The fifteen remaining registrants are transfers from other colleges after an absence of one semester or more.

Twenty-four Expelled

Despite the many erroneous reports of several hundred being dismissed from Duke because of their failure to pass the mid-year examinations, it is understood that comparatively few men have suffered this embarrassment. The number of appreciations has not been officially announced, but not yet been completed. From the freshman office, however, comes the report that twenty-four freshmen and eighteen advanced freshmen were expelled.

Because of the incomplete reports received by this paper it is unable to publish a complete list of those who failed last year. Indications point, however, to a greater laxity in studies among the student body.

The faculty committee on investigations realizes this fact and it is the process of taking steps to raise the academic requirements for remaining in school. These steps should undoubtedly take their grip on the student body.

Senior Jackets

All men interested in purchasing senior class jackets should see members of the Huberdashery staff for measurement and take these measurements to the Student Activity office where payment must be made between 2 and 5 any afternoon.

Alyea to Speak

Dr. E. P. Alyea, of Duke Hospital, will speak before members of the Freshman Friendship council, Tuesday, February 12, at 7:00 p.m. All freshmen are invited to attend. The lecture will be given in the auditorium of the Duke hospital.

Frampton Essay Wins Frosh Council Contest

Boatwright Awarded Second Place; Winning Essay Points Out Where Duke Has Failed to Meet Founder's Expectations and Hopes

George T. Frampton, of Scarsdale, N. Y., was declared the winner of the annual essay contest sponsored by the Freshman Friendship council and the Student Government association. Victor T. Boatwright, of Portsmouth, Virginia, was declared the second place winner. The announcement of the winners was made last night by Bill Fickes, president of the council. Both Frampton and Boatwright are members of the editorial staff of the CHRONICLE.

The winning essay was titled "Establishing Traditions at Duke University." Frampton will be presented with a loving cup at a future meeting of the freshmen class.

Judged on Originality

The essays submitted were judged upon originality, composition, and neatness by a committee composed of Professor H. M. Caldwell, Dr. Paul Mitchell, Jr., and C. E. Wood.

At the last meeting of the council a decision was reached that four debates would be held in the fall. The first convention to be held in Greensboro, however. The dates of the delegates were not known at press time. Hayden Thomas, of Pittsburgh, Penna., was appointed chairman of the council, however, will be one of the delegates.

Text of Essay

The text of Frampton's winning essay follows:

As Duke university, which James B. Duke founded, grows in size, it will achieve nation-wide recognition as a seat for liberal education, moves toward its goal, the administration and the leaders of the campus are alarmed by the conspicuous absence of traditions, prevalent on the contemporary campi of America. These traditions are centered about student activities handed down from class to class, student rivalry, and old customs which have been agee before, and are now deeply rooted in the very walls of the universities that their origins seem to date back to the first days of college education. The Duke leaders conclude, with an eye to the future student body, that traditions of this kind ought at once to be established.

Material Tradition Desirable

Those who concern themselves with the establishing of these traditions, view the laborious task with a serious decisions. The first delusion is that material tradition is either necessary or desirable. Material tradition, at the writer's college, is a kind of tradition upon which alumni

WOMEN TO OPEN SPORTS TOURNEY

Annual East Campus Basketball and Volleyball Contests Start Monday

SPONSORED BY W. A. A.

Opening games in the annual women's basketball and volleyball tournaments sponsored by the W. A. A., and the Physical Education department, will be played on the East campus at 4:00 and 5:00 Monday, it was announced today by Miss Ann Preston. Practices were begun before examinations and several practices have been held since the close of the exam period. The class of '38 and the freshmen of last year Elizabeth Sutton is manager of volleyball and last year class manager of basketball is manager of the volleyball teams.

Monday night at 8:00 the informal basketball tournament will begin. Co-eds from Greensboro, the nurses, and several independent groups compose the teams playing this tournament. There will be practically all games during standings.

German Department Opens Essay Contest

The Curator of the Goethe museum in Frankfort on the Main, Germany, has presented a number of sets of Goethe's works to the Carl Schurz Memorial Foundation, it was announced today. The Foundation has offered one of these sets to the German department of Duke university, with the understanding that the set be awarded to the undergraduate student who presents the best essay on "The Cultural Value of the German Language" on or before May 1, 1935.

Essays must be in the hands of Professor Vollmer by that date and the set will be awarded immediately after the close. Further particulars, see the bulletin board outside of Page 40, or consult with any member of the German department.

STAFF INTEREST AIDS EFFICIENCY OF CHANTICLEER

Concentrated Energy Hastens Progress of Annual; Release Date May 5

Work on the 1935 Chanticleer is progressing rapidly.

According to Martin Williams, editor of the Duke year book: "Never before in my knowledge has there been such concentrated energy and interest on the part of the staff directed towards putting out a Chanticleer that will do justice to the university and to the student body than so far and at the same time be a creditable tribute to the class of '35." There are many factors which contribute to this general interest, but the efficiency on the part of the staff. In the first place, since the beginning of the year the heads of the various staff departments, adding greatly to progress efficiency shows. This is a very important innovation and speeds up work tremendously. Added to this is the fact that the co-ed staff has been doing work far superior to any ever shown before.

Policy Changes

In the art department, there have been marked changes from previous policies. To begin with, a great deal more freedom in the degree or color and originality to the book, while meeting at the same time, to a considerable degree, the traditions of previous issues. The view section of the book will be of interest in that the attempt has been made to depict the various units of the campus with the buildings in the background. To add to this, a running account of the building of the campus will be continued throughout the book. This avoids omission and forms the totality of impression necessary with the type of architecture at Duke.

Campus Life Stressed

This year there is a greater emphasis than ever before placed on real life and campus interest. The outline

A.F.L. COMMITTEE SAYS ROOSEVELT IGNORED REPORTS IN AUTO INDUSTRY

Claim President Overlooked Five Recommendations of NRA Research Committee in Code Extension

EMPHASIZE ATTACK ON PRACTICE IN INDUSTRY

Paint Dark Picture of Labor Unrest; Want 40-Hour Week Established

Washington, Feb. 8—(U.P.)—Organized labor today charged the report on conditions in the automobile industry today as new ammunition in its battle with the administration over renewal of the automobile code.

American Federation of Labor leaders pointed out President Roosevelt ignored most of the six specific recommendations made by the NRA planning and research division in his recent extension of the code.

Charge Exploitation

They emphasized the attack on the automobile industry contained in the report which charged exploitation of labor, espionage, and the working of men beyond "human capacity."

The automobile labor board, headed by Dr. Leo Wolman, under free the American Federation of Labor, was criticized in the report as ineffective in preventing exploitation of labor. Protest was made against removal of the board by the President.

The report, made after a study ordered last November by President Roosevelt, was termed by the recovery board as the most comprehensive analysis by NRA of any other major industry and as the board's "greatest achievement."

Says Labor Unrest Evident

The report painted a "rather dark picture" of labor unrest in the industry and recommended reform of "unfair practices including the "insecurity, low wage earnings, inequitable earnings, inequitable rehiring methods, espionages, speed-up, and displacement of workers at an extremely early age."

The NRA made no recommendation concerning the labor board, but did urge establishment of a "comprehensive" automobile industry labor relations board "fostering constructive development of improved relations."

The only major recommendation which would result in renewal of automobile code, the report revealed, was for announcement of new models and the annual automobile show in the fall rather than spread out production and employment.

Want 40-Hour Week

"A maximum work week of 40 hours, with time-and-a-half for overtime, was recommended. The board fixed 48 hours as the maximum. Recommendation for extension of facilities for collective bargaining was not absent.

Other recommendations ignored were for coordination of labor provisions in the codes for the automobile manufacturing industry and the automotive parts industry with the code for the related special tool, die and machine shop and.

Coordinated reform of sales and purchasing methods to relieve "destructive pressure" on automobile parts manufacturers.

FACULTY COMMITTEES IN INVESTIGATION GIVE PRELIMINARY REPORT

Preliminary reports of faculty investigating committees were made to the council on undergraduate instruction meeting yesterday afternoon. The investigations are not complete and no action on suggestions was taken.

Among the sub-committees reporting were those dealing with student scholarship. The question of raising the academic requirements for remaining in college was included in the scope of their findings.

The council on undergraduate instruction, composed of deans and assistant deans of Trinity college, and the Woman's college and the members of the general faculty devoting fifty per cent or more of their time to giving instruction in the college of liberal arts and sciences, was formed during the first semester.

Seven major committees, with numerous sub-committees, are making a comprehensive study of undergraduate academic and campus problems.

Imps Ask For It--Get It; Master System Not Bad

By GEORGE T. FRAMPTON

When the author of a highly reputable CHRONICLE pillar recently "tipped off" the freshmen to the fact that they were about to have "provision" imposed upon them, he was giving the impression that there was to be the near future to be a Descent upon Kilgo Quadrangle, (1935) of which recalcitrant frosh ought to be surprised. After a little subsequent scrutinizing about, however, the writer can properly put the freshman in the role of one who can not only take it and like it, but whose welfare is a joy.

It would be dangerous to predict or estimate the results of the freshman house-master system at such an early date as this, for not two weeks have passed since its inauguration. Moreover, it would also be almost impossible to give the typical freshman's reaction to the system until one has been taken. But since a cross-section can be got, and since all parties concerned with the matter except the freshmen themselves have been quized and re-quoted, a few significant remarks from the freshmen should prove interesting.

Asked For System

That the freshmen themselves asked for the master system, and that it was not forced upon them, is self-evident. "The freshmen themselves have voiced the desire frequently that there should be someone to whom they could go for advice on matters which could not be explained by their own classmates," said the editorial page of the CHRONICLE way back on May 15, 1934, "and the present system of policing power, would be an aid in making life in freshmen dormitories more enjoyable and more conducive to study," the then new editor added in his editorial. These views were echoed by Dean Manchester when he told the writer that the plan was guaranteed "partly because previous experience indicated that some such action was necessary; partly because a number of the freshmen class have insistently requested that a plan of this type be inaugurated."

Like Advice of Elders

So far as "man in the street" cross-examination is a criterion, the freshman are receiving the system very favorably. That can definitely be said.

Critic Joins Audience In Praise Of Symphony

By HERBX KEITER CRAIG

An inspired and inspiring Minneapolis symphony orchestra played before a large and appreciative audience in Page auditorium Tuesday evening under the direction of Eugene Ormandy, and presented a program of unusual excellence and magnificently appealing Hungarian conductor.

In Eugene Ormandy, an exceptionally varied and balanced program was characterized by remarkable facility of expression, a precision of touch, a sensitive appreciation of tonal values, the interpretation which appeared to flow easily and naturally from the soul of the composer and through the instruments of the 85 players. The personality of Eugene Ormandy was intriguing to both orchestra and audience. His dynamic energy, manifested at every phrase of the various scores commanded the respect of both, while his own masterly interpretation of each number was closely evident in his very manner of conduction.

Audience Responsive

The program opened with the Leonore Overture, No. 3, Op. 72, by Beethoven. Its dramatic unity and strength established a mood of appreciation and receptivity for Brahm's Symphony No. 1 in B Minor, Op. 98, which followed. This symphony was perhaps the highest type of music, since as it rose to heights of splendor and touched depths of passion that only the masters attain.

By popular request the symphony next rendered Strauss' Don Juan, rather than the "Waltzes" from Der Rosenkavalier with which it had been planned. The more familiar strains of the Don Juan were exceptionally pleasing, the running breath of wind passing through the string section like the light phrases of the number being affected with delicacy.

Brahm's Hato Perpetuo, Op. 11, orchestrated last summer by Eugene Ormandy, was a thrilling bit performed as a solo by all the first violins. The swift bow work was an exhibition of supreme virtuosity, attaining a unity of effect that was precise and more than remarkable as a technical feat.

Lighter Encores Popular

The orchestra gave next three pieces from Berlioz's Damnation of Faust, the first, "Minuet of the Will-o'-the Wisps" was an very fantasy with a chilling thread of surprise running
